

The Albuquerque Journal is looking for an aggressive, competitive reporter to cover retail, commercial real estate and the hospitality industry for its business desk. The position involves a mix of stories for daily print and digital products and longer takeouts for our weekly business magazine. We're looking for someone who knows how to build a strong source network and who can write clear, engaging copy for a general audience.

If interested, please submit a cover letter, resume and a half-dozen work samples to Business Editor Charlie Moore. (cmoore@abqjournal.com).